

The spiritual impulse of the Christmas Conference

Dear members and all participants of the International Members Forums

We would like to invite you to the next International Members' Forum that will take place online on 17th May 2026 at 15:00 (CET).

Since a committee at the Goetheanum is preparing a draft proposal for new statutes for the General Anthroposophical Society to be presented at the General Anthroposophical Society's AGM in April 2026* (see note at the end), we would like to devote our next International Forum to the spiritual impulse given by Rudolf Steiner during the Christmas Conference of 1923/1924, as it is reflected and embodied in the founding statutes at that time. We would like to have a conversation with the members worldwide on this important issue. Additionally, we invited the members of the above mentioned committee to participate in this exchange. The proposal will be published by then and can be the basis of our discussion.

Focusing on the Christmas Conference of 1923/1924 we would like to reflect with you on questions such as: What qualities does the Anthroposophical Society need in the current world situation? What was the essence of the Christmas Conference impulse and what is its relevance today? What direction should we take to make it a living reality in the General Anthroposophical Society and Movement?
